Research Interest and Expertise

Legal drafting is the most important instrument of legal communication. A professional need to have a very good hand at drafting as the skill to draft well is the skill to think and communicate well. Drafting is the collection and placing of all aspects of the matter in a logical manner and a lucid style so that the contents of the documents can be understood without any ambiguity. It becomes essential for a draftsman to draft all legal documents with precision, to clearly depict all essential facts as well as engage a layman to its content. Legal research is so significant for law firms, lawyers, legal corporations and businesses as it supports them in handling the complicated legal cases and helps in forming strong arguments for their case. In this field I have following experience

- Worked as lecturer Punjab University Gujranwala Campus, Department of Law since 2015
